I will tell people not to let Joe watch your sheep. It appears now that he is helping his Republican buddies spread negative news about the aid that they voted on for the statesddg

Mr. Kessler, while I'm a Republican, I want to thank you West Virginia Democrats for defending the unborn life as well as sanctity of marriage (conservative values) while defending environment against pollution and middle-class rights (like affordable college), and I will do everything I can to help you good Democrats accomplish your goals.

But I need your help in one area:

I know you are annoyed by your nephew James Kyle Kessler (I just now was able to get in contact with him), and I don't mean any offense-- but he told me a funny story about you and I can't remember the details. If I tell it to friends, I want to quote you correct and show proper respect:

My recollection is that Kyle said someone (maybe a constituent when you were a delegate) wanted you to hear him out-- and you replied: "I'll hear you out, but when you're finished, by God, I ask you to hear me out too."

Was my recollection right?

P.S.: I know you may have some political differences with your former opponent, Joe Manchin, but as all of us (good middle-class Americans of BOTH parties) are mostly on the same side, I want to assure you that when I email him in my capacity as Higher Ed reporter of <https://ContractWithAmerica2.com> , I will try to give him tips to get our common goals accomplished. If you give me your e-mail address, I'll include you a copy of when I email him.

But anyhow, please jog my memory on that funny story: Was I right in recalling what Kyle said? Thanks.

Gordon Wayne Watts , I am sorry I can't honestly recall that incident but if I told Kyle that he probably remembers better than I! I will tell you that I don't use "by God" in my speech. I don't understand how being quoted as such would be offensive to me either?

Melvin Kessler my memory is good but not great on details like this, which explains the slight errors in quoting your exact reply. But, while I am sure that you would probably not be offended by an honest attempt at humour on my part (ie me telling others a funny story and maybe getting it wrong on a few details), I am careful to be on the safe side here. Moreover, I was honestly curious myself. When I was finally able to visit him, he said that it was me you told this to after I called you, but while I think I emailed you a link to my political fight to get bankruptcy restored to student loans, I don't recall talking to you, and Kyle and I are both more baffled than when we began. On a personal note, I understand from him that you get annoyed from him being talkative (something that I accidentally do at times), and while that's true, and I totally understand you hanging up on his big mouth, he's a true friend that has helped me out on a few occasions, and I hope you are patient with people like us who accidentally are gator mouths. In any event, thank you Melvin, for giving it your best try to jog our memory. And, while I know you're out of politics and respect that (i.e., I don't expect any help here), nonetheless, if you're bored, you can see my current projects and have interesting reading to show others carry on the fight for justice on multiple fronts: <https://ContractWithAmerica2.com>

Gordon Wayne Watts , thank you for your concern and help in the fight!
We have to carry on even though it gets old!
I'll look up your sight and probably get back with you!
It's ashamed the way the government does college students. If not free college the interest rate should be zero!
Thanks again!

Melvin Kessler, since I don't actually know you, I can't honestly drop your name when I e-mail Sen. Manchain to suggest that he adopt student loan bankruptcy as an issue to make Democrats happy and increase his odds of getting some sensible but needed pork spending cuts (particularly use of TRILLIONS$$ of tax$$ to make or guarantee college loans which frankly aren't needed).

But I was thinking of mentioning in passing that, after chatting with you briefly, on an unrelated subject (Kyle's tall tale), that-- despite any differences-- all y'all WV Democrats seem mostly good and will help him get the job done.

While your page here is public, still, I won't share it with them unless it's ok with you. (Granted dropping your name might backfire, but I suspect it will help-- and I need all the help I can get.) Can I share your thoughts here with your former rival and now one of your Senators?

Gordon Wayne Watts, It's already public, I don't hide what I've seen or my thoughts!

Even though Manchin and I have had favorable run ins I don't think he would be happy with my thoughts of him now! But that's your call!

Melvin Kessler thank you for your fearless generosity with your support. Technically, yes -- we're posting publicly, but it is good to ask. Anyhow, while I did make passing mention of your Elon Musk quote, I'll be sure to amend my original email to him as I get a chance. Every little bit helps.
